A hard look

Eastern's reaccreditation team preparing for April 1 deadline

By TOM LAW
Staff writer

More than 150 students, faculty and staff members are expected to gather information on every facet of the university's operation as Eastern prepares for reaccreditation next February.

Organized under a 22-member steering committee and 15 subcommittees, the group began a self-study last spring as part of the university's process of reaccreditation by the North Central Association of Colleges.

Eastern, which was last accredited in 1985, began the process last February by applying to NCAC, said Steve Whitley, director of general education.

Kandy Baumgardner, a professor of zoology and head of the steering committee, said the subcommittees are now working on individual reports, which are expected to be completed by April 1.

"Kandy will then pull all that information into a single self-study," Whitley said.

Whitley, who is serving as resource gatherer in the process, said the study should be completed by early September, when it will be proofread, published and sent to the NCAC offices in Chicago.

"The process is very important. If a school is not accredited, its degree is not recognized."

— David Jorns
Eastern's president

"Everything was closely studied," Baumgardner said. "Academics, community relations, research by faculty . . . nothing went unstudied."

The 15 subcommittees, consisting of a faculty chair, a vice president, treasurer, student senate members and other faculty and staff members, developed and administered three random-sample questionnaires to gather much of the information, Baumgardner said.

The surveys focused on students, faculty and civil service members.

Eastern President David Jorns, who periodically has met with Baumgardner and the steering committee, stressed the necessity of this process.

"The process is very important," Jorns said. "If a school is not accredited, its degree is not recognized."

"The United States is the only country in the world to have a self-monitored school system," Whitley said. "We voluntarily invite our peers to help us in analysis and accreditation."

He said the NCAC is comprised of former administrators, faculty and staff members of colleges accredited by the organization.

The NCAC, which covers all colleges and universities in 19 states, is one of five different accrediting organizations in the country, Baumgardner said.

Rathskeller gets OK as bar alternative, coffee house

By JOHN FERA
Student government editor

The Rathskeller in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union's Rathskeller will be used as a coffeehouse on Saturdays beginning next fall semester, Student Government members said.

Shirley Von Bokel, executive vice president of Student Government, said tentative plans are to open the Rathskeller restaurant every Saturday next fall from 8 p.m. to midnight. Von Bokel said a student talent show will be staged April 30 as a "trial test" for next fall.

Von Bokel said she hopes to get student acts including musical performers, poetry readings and others to make the April 30 talent show a showcase of next fall's coffeehouse entertainment.

Von Bokel said the coffeehouse will be open exclusively on Saturday nights only because the restaurant is also used by the university to hold banquets and wedding receptions.

Rathskeller committee member Gail Walker says the coffeehouse will be a great opportunity for students to publicize their talents.

"There aren't really a lot of places on campus where students can get up and do their own comedy or poetry in front of people," she said.

She said the Rathskeller committee will advertise this week the positions of talent director, art director, promotions director, master of ceremonies and student organization representative.

Committee member Dylan McNeill said he's had experience overseeing two other coffeehouses before attending Eastern. McNeill thinks promoting talent from within the university will be one of the best tools to publicize the Rathskeller coffeehouse.

"I hope to get some cross-campus communication going to get help from the theater, music, speech and other departments," McNeill said. "I do not want to advertise this as a bar alternative."

At this stage, McNeill said providing students with the opportunity to attend a coffeehouse regularly is more important than trying to make a profit from the plan.

"You don't make money off coffeehouses," McNeill said, adding he'd like to get local business to offer prizes for winners of student-talent acts. "The only expenses we'll have is to buy our own sound system. Money is not a concern."

In mid-January, the Union Advisory Board formed a committee to oversee the technical aspects of transforming the Rathskeller restaurant into a multi-purpose bar alternative.

Speech to discuss effects of hip hop

By ADAM McHUGH
Activities editor

The impact of rap and hip-hop music genres on African Americans and society will be examined by a local educator today.

Brisbane Rouzan, assistant vice president of academic affairs at Illinois State University in Normal, will speak on "Rap and the Hip-Hop Generation" at 7:30 p.m. in the Kansas Room of the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union.

The presentation, which is part of Eastern's celebration of Black History Month, will present critical views on rap and the controversial themes associated with it such as gang violence.

Johnetta Jones, director of the Minority Affairs Office, said when she heard Rouzan was researching the effect of rap on society, she thought he would be an appropriate addition to the month's programming.

"Because the month has the theme 'A Taste of Black Culture,' this subject had to be included because these types of music are exactly that," Jones said.

She said the presentation should be fascinating to individuals on both sides of the issue.

"(The impact of rap on society) is certainly one of the hot topics right now, with some people seeing it just as another type of music and others see it as a bad influence."

Lincoln's early romance discredited

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — The legend of Abraham Lincoln's early romance with Ann Rutledge was further discredited by a newly discovered letter written by a New Salem neighbor of the future president, scholars say.

The letter, written by R.J. Onstott, vehemently denied that Lincoln was romantically involved with Rutledge, who died in 1835 at age 19.

Onstott was only about 5 years old when Rutledge died. Despite his early age, he would have had some personal knowledge of her death as well as recollections of family discussions of the event, said Wayne Temple, chief deputy director of the Illinois State Archives.

Lincoln was acquainted with Rutledge when they lived in New Salem, a village of about 25 families 15 miles northwest of Springfield.

Abe made into iceman

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS (AP) — Forget Frosty the Snowman and his friends.

Artist Fran Volz has sculpted an ice bust of Abraham Lincoln that's attracted hundreds of school children, impersonators and others eager to pose for a snapshot with Honest Abe.

"It makes me feel really good that I've done a good job, and it makes people feel happy," Volz said Friday as he patched up melted areas on the 16th president's face.

"When people drive by and honk, it just keeps you going," he said.

Among those visiting the sculpture recently was state Rep. Carolyn Krause, R-Mount Prospect, who posed for a picture with Lincoln's icy mug.

"There's no more appropriate Republican," Krause said, adding she might use the picture in her campaign literature.

Volz's lawn art also has attracted foreign tourists, although most visitors are average Americans celebrating the Great Emancipator's 185th birthday Saturday.

But the first known public reference to any romance came many years after her untimely death.

William Herndon, Lincoln's law partner, told of a love between Lincoln and Rutledge during a speech in Springfield more than 30 years after her death.

"Billy Herndon started this hogwash in 1866 in a lecture at the court house to shock everybody," Temple said. "He liked to sensationalize."

In his biography of Lincoln, published in 1889, Herndon expanded on this theme and said that the future president and Rutledge were engaged and that he was disconsolate with her loss.

"Herndon tied this into Lincoln acting so melancholy all his life," Temple said. "He had a melancholy disposition, and he could be very sad."

Herndon's account was widely accepted until historians began doubting it in the 1920s, after which it fell into total disrepute.

Only recently, though, the romance has been given some new credibility by a few historians.

Onstott's letter was written to a friend, R.Y. Kincaid, a bookshop owner in Athens.

Aide: No Beatles reunion

NEW YORK (AP) — A London newspaper report that the three surviving Beatles are planning a concert in Central Park is an "out and out lie," an aide to Paul McCartney said Sunday. A spokesman for John Lennon's family said he knew nothing about the concert either.

Jeff Baker, McCartney's personal assistant, told ABC Radio News that "there's not a shred of truth" to the report in The Mail on Sunday.

The group last performed in London in January 1969.

ence on America's youth," Jones said.

Jones said people who remember entertainers such as Elvis Presley and The Beatles will be able to draw several comparisons with today's rap.

"Back in the 1960s, a lot of people felt that Elvis and the Beatles were a bad impact on teenagers, and the same can be said today for rap artists," Jones said.

She said Rouzan will show a short film on the issue before he begins speaking to familiarize audience members with the various components of rap.

Among those components are the sexually explicit lyrics and connotations of violence common to "gangsta rap," and the clothing associated with rap, which some think symbolizes gang affiliation.

"For a lot of people in Charleston, there seem to be signs of gang activity just from what some people wear," Jones said.

Jones said she was surprised so few lecturers specialized in the issue adding that she was pleased when she heard Rouzan was an expert on the topic.

Whitewater made Clinton's money

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — The money-losing Arkansas real estate venture that has entangled the first family in a federal investigation began generating a small income months before President and Mrs. Clinton sold their interest.

The Clintons decided not to take any of the money before ending their 14-year relationship with Whitewater Development Corp. in December 1992, one of their lawyers told The Associated Press.

In May 1992, Whitewater paid off its remaining loans, enabling it to being making a little money. Since then, those proceeds — which total less than $200 a month — have gone to the Clintons' former business partner, James McDougal.

The Clintons have said they invested and lost nearly $69,000 during their years as co-owners of Whitewater.

They formed the venture in 1978 with McDougal and his then-wife, Susan, to build a bustling vacation and retirement community on the banks of the White River in northern Arkansas' Ozark Mountains.

CAA reviews forwarded to vice president

By AMY CARNES
Administration editor

The Council on Academic Affairs Thursday voted to send its program status recommendations to the vice president for academic affairs — concluding the three-week Board of Governors Annual Academic Program Review process.

The council recommended that 11 of the 15 reviewed programs maintain status quo.

The review status allows a university to address serious program problems such as low enrollment, low graduation rate and continuous high or low cost. As part of the review process, the university reports regularly to the BOG chancellor's office.

Among the programs reviewed was the recreation administration program, which last year received a "status quo asterisk" recommendation because of high cost.

David Culkin, leisure studies department chairman, said when the program went up for its 10-year accreditation review in 1993, 32 of the 104 standards were not met.

William Higelmire, a faculty member in the department of leisure studies, said the chairman's "intensive review" recommendation is premature because the program's reaccreditation will not be determined until April. He also said the program was on "expand" status by the Board of Governors just three years ago.

"We were never given the opportunity as a faculty to have a voice in this incrimination," Higelmire said of the chairman's decision to give the program an "intensive review" recommendation.

Several CAA members expressed concern about placing the recreation administration program on "intensive review" because of the time limit involved. Two years is the maximum amount of time a program may remain under that status.

The council gave the recreation administration program a "status quo asterisk for curriculum revision" recommendation. The jazz studies program was also placed on preliminary "curriculum revision" status by the council.

The council gave the graphic design option in art an "expand" recommendation. Funds for expansion will be provided by a reallocation of personnel dollars within the art department as well as a reallocation at the college level.

The results of the program reviews will likely be given to Board of Governors Chancellor Tom Layzell in March and presented to the board in July. The BOG has the final say whether to follow the council's recommendations.

Essay deadline draws closer

The deadline for the Black History Month Essay Contest is drawing near with only two essays submitted so far.

Cassie Simpson, editor in chief of The Daily Eastern News, said she is disappointed in the lack of interest and hopes that more students will enter the essay contest.

"The theme Where Do We Go From Here? is an important one. It addresses a question that people have been asking for a long time," Simpson said. "This is a forum for students to speak about their own ideas and concerns. It would be a sad representation of our society if only two people cared enough to voice their views."

The Black History Month Essay Contest deadline is 4 p.m. Friday. Participants can bring their entries to the News Office in the Buzzard Building. Entries regarding the theme, Where Do We Go From Here?, should be 500 words or less.

Awards will be given for the first, second and third place winners. Winners will be announced at the Miss Black EIU Pageant Feb. 26 and will receive prizes donated by contest sponsors.

Winning essays will be printed in The News Feb. 28.

City Council to vote on zoning requests

By DAVID M. PUTNEY
City editor

Several zoning-related ordinances top the agenda of the Charleston City Council meeting Tuesday.

The council is scheduled to meet at 7:30 p.m. in City Council Chambers in City Hall, 520 Jackson Ave.

The City Council will consider a request by Charles and Nancy White to rezone a tract of land on the west side of Route 130 near Garfield Avenue from neighborhood commercial to general commercial. The Whites have also asked the city to rezone a portion of that land from single-family residential to multi-family residential.

White plans to develop several single-family homes on the Copperfield Lane subdivision site. In addition, White said, he plans to extend Garfield Avenue to Rt. 130.

The Board of Zoning Appeals and Planning has recommended the council approve the subdivision.

In addition, two other subdivision developers are seeking final plat approval. Steve and Lola Drake are seeking final approval for their Stillwater subdivision to be located on the south side of Rt. 16. Glenn and Nancy Frederick are also seeking approval for their Briarwood Subdivision to be located on Douglas Drive just south of Lincolnshire Apartments.

The Board of Zoning Appeals and Planning have recommended the council approve both subdivisions.

The council will also vote on an ordinance to admit property owned by Illinois Consolidated Communications in Mattoon into Coles County's enterprise zone. City councils in Mattoon, Oakland and Charleston and the Coles County Board all have to grant approval to the request. ICTC plans to add a sixth floor to its headquarters.

In other business, the City Council will:

- Consider granting $2,500 in tourism funds to Eastern to fund Celebration '94, an annual campus arts festival planned for the last weekend in April, and $2,730 to produce and distribute 75,000 brochures promoting the Lincoln Log Cabin State Historic Site.

- Consider an ordinance to advertise for competitive bids for overhead garage doors for Charleston Fire Station No. One, 404 10th St., and Fire Station No. Two, 1510 A St.

Senate plan to make campus a safer place

The Student Senate has a plan to make walking home at night on campus a little safer.

Senate members said last week they may consider reviving an evening escort service within the next few weeks, and could finalize the program by the end of the month. With some improvements, the idea could be a good one.

Editorial

If the service is implemented, students who don't want to walk alone on campus at night would be able to call the Student Government Office to request an escort. Before the escort would walk the caller to the destination, a meeting place and password would be given to the caller to ensure that no one attempts to impersonate an escort.

The escort service would cover all campus buildings, plus a two-block radius on each side of the campus. The service would operate from 8 p.m. to midnight, seven days a week, and would be staffed by members of student organizations such as Student Government and the Army ROTC.

Eastern's ROTC ran a similar program until three years ago, when it stopped because too few students volunteered to participate in the program.

Senate member Nick Bart said the move to revive the program came after noticing "insecurity about walking on campus," which was heightened after two Eastern students reported being the victims of assaults near the Library Quad last semester.

Bringing back the program is a good idea, but it could stand room for improvement. The service is scheduled to run from 8 p.m. to midnight, a time when some students are still on campus. Students who walk home from studying or from work after midnight, a time when few people are out on campus, will still have to make the walk alone.

This becomes even more of a factor on weekend nights, when students walking alone after midnight may encounter groups of students returning from the bars.

But, in all, students should not hesitate to use and support the program. Eastern's campus appears to be a relatively safe place, but the escort service could make it a little safer.

Raising the bar-entry age is just a start

To be in a college town is to be in a place where alcohol sales boom. The number of bars and drive-thru liquor stores can tell you that much.

And with or without a bar-entry age of 19, the opportunities to get drunk will abound.

But recently, the underage bar-entry age has been the unfair target of city officials and residents of various college towns around the state.

Many people attending liquor forums in Champaign, home of the University of Illinois, claim the low entry age has greatly contributed to deaths, delinquency and an increase in crime.

That, critics say, is enough of a reason to increase the bar-entry age to 21 — an idea that is being considered in Champaign and Charleston.

But officials are looking past the real culprit for crime and other mishaps. Binge drinking, and not the low entry ages, is the problem throughout the state. The real issue officials should address is how to curb and control binge drinking in their towns.

Raising the bar-entry age is just the tip of the iceberg.

In the liquor forums in Champaign, area residents have told horrible stories of loss and have attributed them to the low bar-entry age. Monticello mother Nancy Busey told the crowd of the death of her daughter, 18-year-old Ronna Felty, who went to Champaign with a fake ID to drink at the bars.

She was hit by a 19-year-old drunk driver, who may have also been at the local establishments.

"I pray you never know how lonely and empty I feel," Busey told the crowd at the Jan. 26 Champaign liquor forum. "When you go home to your families, remember all I have to go home to are memories and pictures."

Her story is sad enough, but it only points to the attraction many underage students feel to drink in a college town. You will see these students everywhere, and not just in cities with a low-entry age.

Chris Seper

"The fear of increasing house parties is no excuse not to change the bar-entry age."

At Northern, where the bar-entry age is 21, high school students can be found at many of the house parties. Most will admit that they're in high school, as long as you don't tell anyone.

But the fear of increasing house parties is no excuse not to change the bar-entry age — it is another step to eliminating underage drinking. Better police enforcement and cooperation with the university could make these parties, at the least, pseudo-responsible.

Bar entry-ages are increasing all over the state. Macomb, home to Western, is planning to increase the entry age from 19 to 21. In Carbondale, home of Southern, the entry age has increased from 18-and-a-half to 19.

Champaign's investigation into increasing the age has caught the eye of Charleston's mayor, Dan Cougill. Three public forums have been scheduled here to discuss the idea of increasing the entry age. Two of the forums will be held on campus.

If Champaign decides to increase its bar-entry age to 21, Charleston officials will have no choice but to follow suit. It would be a defensive maneuver by the mayor to protect the city from an influx of U of I students who are sure to come this way.

But beyond the increasing bar-entry ages, there needs to be a focus on prevention, and the understanding that getting students out of the way will not improve the drinking climate in this state, but only shift it to another part of town.

If increasing the bar-entry age is the only answer city officials have to curbing underage drinking, the only way parents will keep their kids away from it is to move to another city.

Americans already have best health care in the world

Dear editor:

"There is no health care problem." Those words or words to that effect were uttered by Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., a member of President Clinton's own party. Different writers have reported the same conclusion.

Irwin Stelzer reports of a poll in which 80 percent of the participants are "very" or "somewhat" satisfied with the quality and cost of their own health care. Fred Barnes requests in American Spectator, "Will someone please tell Bill Clinton that having no health insurance is not the same as having no health care?"

As lawyers, the Clintons should know about a law passed in 1985. This law requires needed treatment to be provided for anyone entering the emergency entrance of a hospital. The public already has the universal access Clinton says he wants in a new law.

Other writers discuss other flaws of the Clinton plan. We are told a large bureaucracy will give us less paper work, and the poor experiences of other countries with similar plans are discussed.

As citizens, we could look at this issue another way. If there had been a White House conference on the issue, we could have seen it as the presidential way of doing it. First, define the issue. Then reform. Doctors, hospital administrators, insurance people and lawyers could have been invited for their input. That is exactly what did not happen.

Instead, we had the Bill and Hillary road show. Their attacks on the health care providers were unseemly. Tell this couple that the election campaign is over.

How right some of us are to say that our leaders need public support. Leaders who have given us the world's best health care system are under attack from the politicians.

The Clintons tell us they want to take us all to the doctor. With their plan, we will be taken to the cleaners. Bring on the gridlock!

Reader was wrong to criticize others for taking a stand

Dear editor:

Laurie Falduto, the statement (on a chalkboard at Stu's Surfside), "A bitch is a bitch, but a box is still a meal," was disturbing. However, what was more disturbing was your letter on Feb. 9 chastising Kate McBride for her legitimate concern over an obvious wrong.

A lot happens in the world on a daily basis, both good and bad, and there are reactions to both. If something happens to us that we don't think is right, one of two things happen. We either sit by and let it happen, and continue to wonder why it keeps happening, which is what you seem to be advocating, or we decide to use our brains, open our mouths and attempt to change the situation, which seemed to be what Kate was doing.

You also seemed kind of shocked that Kate's attitude was negative — come on, are you kidding? The statement that was on the board at Stu's was definitely derogatory, and it definitely referred to women. Kate, being a woman, was upset by this. Even Stu's management apologized.

It's true, as you say, those were only words. However, in many cases, words often reflect actions and precipitate stereotypes.

In the end, the real issue isn't a women's right thing or a men's right thing; it is a human rights thing. It's about playing an active role in the world in which we live and partially create. The issue is about taking responsibility for the things that go on around us and deciding that maybe some things might have to change.

To make this simple, it's like a game of football. You can either get on the field and try to score a touchdown or sit on the bench and let the other team walk up and down the field. While Kate, and other men and women like her, might get roughed up a bit, at least they'll get their licks in.

Bars should rethink decision to not fund the Gus Bus

Dear editor:

I was baffled and angered by a recent article in The Daily Eastern News. It told of the possibility that the bars may fail to fund the spring Gus Bus. On the face of things, that doesn't seem that unreasonable in this time of fiscal scarcity.

However, what would be required to fund the Gus Bus for a weekend is approximately $200. This amounts to about $20 per bar.

Eastern students are the economic backbone of most Charleston bars. This is a small sum compared to what the bars make off of students. It is repulsive that the bars are not willing to attempt to offset some of the negative impacts of their chief product.

I have a notion that the bars would increase their business if they were to provide this free and safe form of transportation to students. The one major recourse Eastern students have to sway bars is their pocketbooks. I strongly suggest that the bars re-evaluate their position on funding the Gus Bus.

Netsch begins to get attention

Candidate has a long list of 1sts

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — Dawn Clark Netsch has built a career going against the grain. She was the first female law professor at her alma mater, Northwestern University in 1965. Twenty-five years later, she became the first woman elected to a constitutional office in Illinois. In between, she forged a career as a maverick Democrat in the state senate.

Now, the state comptroller wants to be the state's first woman governor.

And, in another slap at the conventional wisdom of politics, she proposes to get there by asking voters to accept a $2.5 billion income-tax increase that would be the largest in Illinois history.

"If we do not bite the bullet and face up to the issue, everything else is just going to go bumping along and never really be resolved," she said of the state's finances.

Netsch started as an underdog in the race for the Democratic Party nomination in the March 15 primary. Attorney General Roland Burris, also vying for the nomination, is a veteran politician with statewide name recognition. Cook County Board President Richard Phelan is a well-organized, wealthy and savvy campaigner who teamed up with Sen. Penny Severns of Decatur to court downstate and women voters.

But in a Chicago Tribune poll conducted Feb. 3-6, Netsch

- Graduated from Northwestern University in 1948. Earned law degree there in 1952.

- Worked at a Washington law firm until 1954, then served as clerk for a federal judge in Chicago. Worked at a Chicago law firm from 1957 to 1961, specializing in antitrust law.

- Began teaching at Northwestern University School of Law, the law school's first female professor, in 1965 and is now professor emeritus.

- Became legislative aide to Gov. Otto Kerner in 1961. Later served on several government commissions.

- Elected to the Senate in 1972; served as head of the Revenue Committee. Sponsored abortion-rights legislation, Equal Rights Amendment and fought for passage of a family medical leave bill.

- Elected comptroller, the state's chief fiscal officer, in 1990, making her the first woman to win a major state constitutional office.

ran only 2 percentage points behind front-runner Burris. Burris led with 30 percent, Netsch had 28 percent and Phelan was third with 13 percent. A month earlier, Burris led with 39, Phelan claimed 16 and Netsch claimed 15.

Netsch, 67, is banking heavily on her ability to build an image of honesty by, among other things, saying upfront that she would seek to raise taxes.

Her proposed $2.5 billion income tax increase is designed to help schools and provide property tax relief. The personal income tax rate would increase to 4.25 percent from 3 percent, while the corporate tax would jump to 6.8 percent from 4.8 percent.

Of the money raised, $1 billion would be earmarked for education, $1 billion for property tax relief and $500 million to provide a progressive income tax exemption for low- and middle-income families.

She also said she would consider taxing personal services such as haircuts and laundry to help the state raise money. In an interview with The Associated Press earlier this month, Netsch stressed that she isn't formally pitching a plan now but would consider it "at some point."

The next day, Netsch's campaign said she does not advocate a personal service tax.

Phelan and Burris criticize Netsch for looking first to the taxpayers, but friends say her tax plan illustrates what Netsch is all about.

Candidates: Edgar fails on health care

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois needs to get to work on health care reform, two Democratic gubernatorial candidates said Sunday.

State Comptroller Dawn Clark Netsch and Attorney General Roland Burris both touted similar health care stances at separate news conferences in Chicago on Sunday.

"Illinois is only one of two states that failed to tackle some kind of significant health care reform in 1992," Netsch said. "Before federal health care legislation is enacted, there are minimum steps to be taken to improve access and control costs here in Illinois."

"Illinois has done nothing to begin this process," Burris said. "We need to be ready to go when (a national health care plan) finally comes out of Washington."

Both candidates knocked Gov. Jim Edgar, saying he'd failed to act on the issue. An Edgar spokesman disagreed.

"Obviously, they weren't listening when the governor gave his State of the State address," spokesman Mike Lawrence said Sunday.

In his speech, Edgar said a task force is drafting a proposal to ensure adequate and affordable health care for Illinoisans between jobs and help small employers provide coverage for their employees.

"Governor Edgar says we can't wait for the adoption of a national health care plan on those two major fronts. ... The task force is to give its recommendation by April 1," Lawrence said.

Burris and Netsch both released lists of criteria they want included in the state's health care plan. Both included providing comprehensive benefits, ensuring universal coverage and containing administrative costs. Both also pledged to work to increase the number of health care providers in currently underserved urban and rural communities.

A third candidate, Cook County Board President Richard Phelan, plans to release his health care plan Monday. Phelan earlier also urged Illinois to prepare for health care reform and pledged to implement a health care system in Illinois to guarantee universal coverage.

In a Chicago Tribune poll conducted Feb. 3-6, Netsch trailed front-runner Burris by only 2 percentage points.

U.S. officials evacuate Belgrade as talks waver

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina (AP) — Bosnian Serbs besieging Sarajevo resumed turning in their big guns on Sunday after the United Nations accepted a compromise plan.

The Muslim-dominated Bosnian government expressed concern that the Serbs were just buying time to prevent NATO air strikes that could begin Feb. 21 if the guns ringing Sarajevo are not pulled back.

The compromise allows Serbs to turn in their heavy weapons at U.N.-monitored Serb bases, rather than at Sarajevo airport as originally planned, said Maj. Jose Labandeira, a U.N. spokesman.

The Bosnian army objected.

"Those weapons can be returned to combat positions very fast," said Bosnian army Gen. Fikret Muslimovic.

"I am afraid that such an approach and an attempt to appease the aggression further would bring a hardening of the Serbian position," said Haris Silajdzic, the Bosnian prime minister.

The Serbs earlier insisted they would surrender their guns only if the Bosnian infantry abandoned its front-line positions. But after heavy lobbying by U.N. officials the Serbs turned over 13 heavy weapons on Sunday, bringing the total to 36 guns: 26 Serbian and 10 Bosnian.

The Bosnian Serbs are estimated to have at least 500 heavy weapons. The Bosnian army has perhaps a tenth of that.

With the four-day Sarajevo truce still shaky, the U.S. Embassy packed the families of 35 diplomats out of Belgrade, Yugoslavia.

Dutch, British and German officials also have urged their citizens to leave Yugoslavia.

The pullout of dependents was a precaution against Serb reprisals in the event of air strikes. Many in the Serb-dominated Yugoslav government and army support the Bosnian Serbs.

NATO has threatened to start air strikes against the Serb guns if they are not withdrawn at least 12 miles from downtown Sarajevo by midnight Feb. 20.

But the U.N. commander for Bosnia, Lt. Gen. Sir Michael Rose, seems to be pursuing whatever strategy will work to get control over the guns and enforce peace in the capital.

Gen. Jean Cot, Rose's boss, met Saturday with Gen. Ratko Mladic, the Bosnian Serb commander, in northwest Bosnia near the besieged Muslim enclave of Bihac.

Odd traditions make up love holiday

BOSTON (AP) "Dim light, soft music, the fragrance of roses and the lascivious lure of 'hyena eyes?'" Or try snaring your Valentine's Day sweetheart by sleeping (presumably alone) with an orange under your armpit.

Americans are expected to spend about $655 million on candy to mark Valentine's Day this year, according to the National Confectioners Association, but giving chocolates and sending cards are only two techniques from centuries of romantic traditions.

The ancient Romans held fertility festivals, in which women masqueraded as wolves and waited to be whipped by men wearing loincloths.

"The men were young and handsome," said University of Massachusetts classics professor Edward Phinney. "The women would go out of their way to be whipped. It was a very cheerful event."

The Romans held their Lupercalia festival every February until 495 A.D., when a pope put a stop to it. Today, during Lenten celebrations in Italy and Greece, young men still chase young women while brandishing whips — made of plastic.

"They probably do it for fun rather than because they know the meaning of it from antiquity," Phinney said.

Ancient Romans also believed in the romantic potency of eating hippopotamus snout and hyena eyes, although food scientist Richard Mudgett said he isn't sure why.

Mudgett, who gives a lecture on "lewd food" in his UMass course called "World Food Habits," said oranges are a more common food associated with romance and sexual pleasure.

To attract a lover, he said, make pricks in an orange, then sleep with the orange under your armpit. According to European folklore, the person who eats the orange will fall in love with you.

Oranges also were considered aphrodisiacs in ancient China, when the emperor would share slices with his favorite concubine and sprinkle orange blossoms on their bed, Mudgett said.

Other so-called "lewd foods" include artichokes, bananas and figs, which follow the logic that if a food resembles sexual organs, it must inspire sexual feelings.

Mudgett said there's no scientific basis for the amorous reputations of these and other fruits and vegetables, though food and romance go hand in hand in Western culture. Friends meet for lunch; lovers court over dinner.

Study hard

Kara Mikoff, a sophomore elementary education major, studies while she awaits customers at the Sugar Shack in the Martin Luther King Jr. University Union Saturday afternoon.

College leaders make waves

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Their campaign was meant as a joke. Who would take them seriously when they promised a university-subsidized Grateful Dead concert and dissolution of student government? Fifty-six percent of the voting student body, that's who.

Meet the University of Notre Dame's unlikely student leaders: David Hungeling and Matt Orsagh, a pair of "free-spirited, regular guys" who didn't enter the race until a week before the deadline.

Hungeling was elected student government president and Orsagh vice president in a runoff election Wednesday.

"That proves what we have heard from people all along," said Hungeling, a government major. "The voters are tired of the same people with the same ideas. They feel the need for something fresh, and they think a couple of knuckleheads will bring it."

The entire student body was eligible to vote, including about 10,000 undergraduate and graduate students. Hungeling and Orsagh, both juniors from Atlanta, received 2,730 votes.

University officials, who remained silent throughout the election, would not comment on Wednesday's results.

In addition to the Grateful Dead concert and the call to dissolve student government, Hungeling and Orsagh endorsed daily harassing phone calls to administrators and free football tickets.

Zulus: Prepare for casualties

Group decides to boycott South African elections

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Zulu leader Mangosuthu Buthelezi told followers Sunday to prepare themselves for "casualties and even death" after his party's decision to boycott the nation's first all-race election.

The Inkatha Freedom Party's decision to sit out the April voting will lead to heightened violence, Buthelezi said. He accused the rival African National Congress of having already started "ethnic cleansing" against his people.

An ANC leader told 5,000 chanting supporters Sunday that it was Inkatha and the white right-wing that was leading the country toward civil war.

"We warn them that we have put our lives down for freedom before," Tokyo Sexwale, the ANC's leader in the Johannesburg-Pretoria region, said at a rally in the violence-scarred black community of Tokoza outside Johannesburg. "If we have to do it again, we will not hesitate."

The Zulu nationalist Inkatha party called for the boycott Saturday, hours before the deadline for registering for the first election to include South Africa's black majority. Nineteen other parties, including the ANC and the governing National Party, met the deadline.

The ANC, which led the fight against white minority rule since its founding 82 years ago, is expected to lead the voting in the April 26-28 election.

Months of talks involving Inkatha, right-wing whites, the government and the ANC, deadlocked last week over how much power regional governments would have under a new constitution.

Negotiating as the Freedom Alliance, Inkatha and the white right-wing want autonomous or independent homelands where they can govern themselves and maintain privileges enjoyed under apartheid.

The government and ANC reject setting up territories on the basis of race or tribe.

"There are people in this country who are claiming that they must be given their own land. That will not happen," ANC head Nelson Mandela told a cheering crowd of 5,000 during a campaign speech Sunday in Retreat, in the southwest.

Gays take a stand against pedophilia

WASHINGTON (AP) — The gay community has long followed other sexual outcasts to ride its coattails, from transvestites and transsexuals to bisexuals and leather fetishists. But it is now trying to distance itself from pedophiles.

Last month, a New York group called Stonewall 25 voted to bar the controversial North American Man-Boy Love Association from its international march on the United Nations on June 26. The demonstration will commemorate the 25th anniversary of an uprising at the Stonewall Inn, a Greenwich Village gay bar.

"Those who advocate or engage in sexual abuse of young people are not welcome in the family of gay men and lesbians who live upstanding and honorable lives," said Patorman, a co-chair of the march.

The gay community has historically been inconsistent in its response to pedophiles, leaving itself open to attack.

In January, the Senate unanimously passed an amendment, introduced by Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., to sharply reduce funds to the United Nations unless it severs ties with the International Lesbian and Gay Association. Helms objected to the association's relationship to NAMBLA, one of about 350 groups that belong to ILGA.

Helms said the United States was "fast asleep at the switch" when it joined other nations in voting last year to give consultative status to ILGA in the U.N. Economic and Social Council.

The council is a 54-nation body that studies economic and social issues and makes non-binding recommendations to the U.N. General Assembly on such topics as human rights, the status of women, population, social welfare, crime and other issues.

David Smith, a spokesman for the National Gay and Lesbian Task Force, a Washington lobby, accused the religious right of trying to link homosexuality to pedophilia to serve its "twisted interests."

"It's very clear that every major U.S. gay leader has condemned NAMBLA and condemned groups that promote pedophilia," he said.

But he acknowledged disagreement among gay leaders about NAMBLA's presence at gay events.

Clinton eyes welfare tax, slash on benefits a possibility

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Clinton administration is considering taxing or slashing welfare benefits to the poor, elderly and disabled to finance expansions in training and child care for millions of single mothers on public assistance, officials say.

The administration's welfare reform task force is also eyeing strict limits on federal cash payments to the growing number of elderly people who immigrate to the United States legally and then retire on Supplemental Security Income, a senior administration official said Monday.

To pay for its overhaul of a welfare system that supports 5 million families with children, most of them headed by a single mother, the administration has decided it must find offsetting savings in other federal welfare programs. But an advocate for the poor says the very thing the administration is now considering in SSI, food stamps and Aid to Families with Dependent Children could hurt the working poor and near-poor in order to help other poor women get jobs.

A senior administration official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the task force is considering several options to pay for welfare reform, but that no decisions are final.

"We are committed to a deficit-neutral plan in which revenue from these options would be used to pay for the new investments in child care, education and training," the official said.

President Clinton's welfare reform legislation, to be introduced this spring, will seek to limit welfare benefits to single mothers to 24 months. Women would be given the training and day care they need to get a job and after two years, would be required to find a job in the private sector. Those who are left behind would be required to do community service work.

Pippen All-Star MVP in East win

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Scottie Pippen, in the shadow of Michael Jordan's spotlight for the first six years of his career, knew it was time to grab it himself in the NBA All-Star Game.

"Having Michael on our club really overshadowed guys like Horace Grant, B.J. Armstrong and myself," Pippen said Sunday after leading the East to a 127-118 victory. "It was time for us to step up as All-Stars a little more. I had my mind set to play much better than I played in past All-Star games."

Pippen, making his fourth All-Star appearance but his first since his superstar teammate on the Chicago Bulls retired last October, scored 29 points on 9-for-15 shooting and grabbed 11 rebounds to win MVP honors.

"I tried to assert myself a little more," Pippen said. "My skills are able to put me up among the elite players. I don't think I needed to go out today and prove anything to anybody."

Pippen, wearing fire-engine red shoes, had averaged 9.3 points in his first three All-Star games. Despite his 29 points, he only scored two in the fourth quarter, but they were big — a baseline jumper with 2:10 left after the West pulled within two points.

"It was the shoes," Pippen joked about his performance. "Everybody was looking at my feet too much. I was shooting well and I just continued to let my shot flow."

The East took its largest lead, 103-90, in the first minutes of the fourth quarter, but the West rallied with a 17-5 run, closing to 108-107 with 7:17 left. Gary Payton's six points and David Robinson's five keyed the comeback.

But the East regained control as New York teammates Patrick Ewing and John Starks combined to score the next nine East points for a 117-110 lead. The run of points by regular-season teammates continued a pattern that the East followed the entire game.

A basket by Clifford Robinson and a 3-pointer by John Stockton made it 117-115 before Pippen, after missing two free throws, connected on his baseline shot.

"I think of him like Lawrence Taylor, the way he came into the NFL," Stockton said of Pippen. "He's a new wave. The things he can do, he just changes the game by himself."

David Robinson and Hakeem Olajuwon shared scoring honors with 19 points each for the West, which trails the All-Star series 28-16.

Ewing scored 12 of his 20 points in the fourth quarter and Mark Price also had 20 for the East, which had 10 3-pointers to one for the West. Pippen was 5-for-9 from that range.

"He was in a zone," West coach George Karl said. "It's difficult when you're substituting a great deal to keep the same guy on him."

Shaquille O'Neal, the NBA's leading scorer this season, had a miserable day for the East, missing 10 of 12 shots and seven of 11 free throws to finish with eight points. But he managed 10 rebounds.

"They were quadruple-teaming me, triple-teaming me," O'Neal said. "I thought somebody was going to play me straight up, but it didn't happen. It means somebody respects me if they had to put four guys on me."

The West, down by 12 in the first half and by eight at halftime, rallied in the third quarter, closing within four twice before Price hit a jumper and a 3-pointer in a span of 37 seconds, helping the East rebuild the margin to 101-90 going into the final 12 minutes.

In the first half, East coach Lenny Wilkens made good use of players who are used to being on the court together.

The West led 25-23 late in the first period before Price, three Knicks and two Atlanta Hawks scored all but two of the East's points in a 36-22 burst that made it 59-47 with 4:59 left in the second quarter.

Wilkens scored 10 points, Price nine, Mookie Blaylock five and Ewing, Starks and Charles Oakley combined for 10 more in the run that gave the East its largest lead of the first half.

Pippen, Grant and Armstrong then combined for the East's next 10 points for a 72-64 halftime lead.

U.S. ties France in hockey

LILLEHAMMER, Norway (AP) — A quick look at what happened Sunday at the Winter Olympics:

HOCKEY — The U.S. hockey team came in two goals behind in the final period to tie France, 4-4, in its opening game.

Peter Laviolette of Franklin, Mass., and Brian Rolston, Ann Arbor, Mich., scored within three minutes of each other with six minutes left in the game to draw even with France.

In the Pool B matches, Sweden and Slovakia tied 4-4 and Canada routed Italy, 7-2.

The U. S. team meets Slovakia on Tuesday in the next game.

FIGURE SKATING — Ekaterina Gordeeva and Sergei Grinkov of Russia won the technical program worth one-third of the total mark in the pairs event. The 1988 gold medalists edged the 1992 Olympic winners, Natalia Mishtenkov and Artur Dmitriev, also of Russia.

Third were 1993 world champions Isabelle Brasseur and Lloyd Eisler of Canada just ahead of another Russian couple Evgenia Plushkova and Vadim Naumov of Russia.

American pairs Jenni Meno of Westlake, Calif. and Todd Sand of Thousand Oaks, Calif., (14th), Karen Courtland of Whippany, N.J. and Todd Reynolds of Houston, (13th) and Kyoko Tanaka of Englewood, N.J. and Jason Dungjen of Troy, Mich., (15th) trailed.

The free skating final is Tuesday night.

SPEEDSKATING — Norway's Johann Olav Koss set a world record of 6 minutes, 34.96 seconds in winning the men's 5,000 meters, shaving .57 off the mark he set on the same Viking Hall track 10 weeks ago.

Teammate Kjell Storelid was second at 6:42.68, an Olympic record until Koss skated. Inge Ritsma of the Netherlands, the world-record holder at 1,500, won the bronze with 4:43.94.

The only American entered, Brian Wanek of Milwaukee, finished 30th (7:05.95).

ALPINE SKIING — Tommy Moe of Palmer, Alaska, won the downhill by .04 seconds over Norway's Kjetil Andre Aamodt. Moe's time was 1 minute, 45.75 seconds. Third went to Ed Podivinsky of Canada in 1:45.87.

"That's what it's all about," Moe said. "Skiing ... the Olympics and winning a medal. It's more than I expected. It's a great feeling for me." Moe joined Bill Johnson, the 1984 winner, as the only American men's downhill gold medalists.

Kyle Rasmussen of Angels Camp, Calif., was 11th (in 1:46.35), AJ Kitt of Rochester, N.Y., 17th (1:46.82) and Craig Thrasher of Steamboat Springs, Colo. 38th (1:48.91).

CROSS-COUNTRY SKIING — Manuela Di Centa of Italy won her first major title in the women's 15-kilometer freestyle race, with a time of 39 minutes, 44.5 seconds.

Lyubov Egorova of Russia, who won three gold and two silver medals at the 1992 Albertville Games, was second in 41:03.0.

Another Russian, Nina Gavriluk, took the bronze medal in 41:10.4.

Laura McCabe of Park City, Utah, was 34th out of 53 finishers in 45:51.1. Laura Wilson of Montpelier, Vt., was 35th (45:59.9), with Leslie Thompson of Stowe, Vt., 37th (46:10.3) and Nina Kemppel of Anchorage, Alaska, 42nd (46:56.8).

LUGE — Duncan Kennedy was poised to take America's first Olympic luge medal after two runs of the men's singles, standing fourth behind defending champion Georg Hackl of Germany. The last two runs are Monday.

Hackl led with a total time of 1 minute 40.856 seconds for two runs, just .01 better than archrival Markus Prock of Austria. Third was Armin Zoggeler of Italy (1:41.042).

point guard," Klein said. "He's someone you hope will have the taste of winning back before she graduates."

Shannon Baugh, who leads the Lady Panthers in scoring average, finished with 13 points.

The Lady Panthers also had trouble containing Wisconsin-Milwaukee's center Andrea Young and guard Pam Bartnik. Young shot 70 percent from the field and finished with 16 points. She also grabbed a game-high 16 rebounds.

"They dominated us on the inside," Klein said of the Golden Panthers' inside game. "We used every post player we had in the first half, but no matter what we did, they had control of the inside."

Bartnik scored a game-high 18 points for Wisconsin-Milwaukee and added five rebounds and four assists.

On Thursday, the Lady Panthers lost to Wisconsin-Green Bay 78-51 to start their Wisconsin road trip. The Lady Phoenix are in second place in the Mid-Con and are led by preseason All-American Kim Wood.

Wood led all scorers and rebounders with 14 points and 10 boards.

"Wisconsin-Green Bay is by far the best defensive team in the conference," Klein said. "We did a nice job on offense of getting shots off. But it gets frustrating as a coach to see your team turnaround the next game against a lesser team and not play with any intensity."

"We have two wins. You would think we would be intense for every game we play."

Kenya Green led Eastern with 12 points while teammate LaShema Marble grabbed a team-high nine rebounds.

Eastern will return home for a Thursday game against Youngstown State. The Lady Panthers gained their only conference win of the season earlier this year against the Penguins in Youngstown, Ohio.

Jordan just added distraction for Sox

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago White Sox begin spring training Tuesday, and the questions manager Gene Lamont hoped to resolve — who's his fifth starter, can Craig Grebeck get more playing time and where does Julio Franco fit in — won't seem so important.

Forget that the White Sox return MVP Frank Thomas and Cy Young Award winner Jack McDowell from a team that lost the AL playoffs to Toronto last October.

Most of the early focus will be on a tall outfielder wearing No. 45. Michael Jordan wants to play baseball and the White Sox are his team of choice.

On Tuesday, a day before pitchers and catchers report, the White Sox open camp at Sarasota, Fla. Jordan will be there.

Can Jordan, four months retired from the NBA and playing baseball for the first time since he was in high school, hit major league pitching? Will he go to the minors for grooming? Will his teammates, like the outspoken McDowell who has an arbitration hearing next week, accept him? How will the White Sox handle the media swarm?

The White Sox had a warmup for the circus atmosphere a year ago when Bo Jackson was trying to make a comeback from hip replacement surgery.

"There will be some distractions involved. I'd like to turn my back to it and say it will be normal, but it won't be," said Lamont.

"We can handle it. We have good players. The thing we have to make sure is that we get the work done that needs to be done every day like we did last year. If we do that we will be all right. We have to plan things and make sure things don't get out of hand." But Jordan will command even a bigger crowd of media, fans and curiosity seekers than Jackson.

Mere months ago Jordan was presumably going to do what rich retirees everywhere do — play golf and enjoy a life free of the spotlight.

But Jordan's desire for a challenge began to blossom as he worked out at Comiskey Park this winter. And he told the White Sox he was serious about playing baseball; it was not just a way of keeping in shape.

Jerry Reinsdorf, the chairman of both the White Sox and the Bulls, whom Jordan led to three straight NBA titles before retiring, was supportive. No surprise there.

"Michael likes challenges. Michael likes to do what people say he can't do," Reinsdorf said in an interview in Kansas City last week.

"Winning three championships in a row was something that hadn't been done for 25 years. The fourth championship really wasn't another plateau, so the challenge wasn't there." White Sox general manager Ron Schueler told the Chicago Tribune last week that Jordan probably would hold three news conferences a week during his spring tryout. Otherwise, he'll be a regular guy.

He probably won't bat against real major league pitchers until Feb. 22 when the entire squad gathers for its first workout.

Jordan, who did not look good in the batting cage during a public workout against 60 to 70 mph pitching a week ago, is expected to struggle against balls that will come at him 20 mph faster and with more movement.

Both Schueler and Lamont say Jordan's chances of making the major league roster are a "million to one."

Wake Forest stuns Duke

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — Randolph Childress scored 22 second-half points and Wake Forest spoiled Duke's shot at the No. 1 ranking Sunday with a 78-69 upset of the second-ranked Blue Devils.

Childress, who finished with 28 points, almost single-handedly helped Wake Forest take its first season-series sweep of Duke since 1983.

Duke (17-3 overall, 8-3 in the ACC) was poised to overtake arch-rival North Carolina as the top team in the country after the top-ranked Tar Heels were upset by Georgia Tech in Chapel Hill on Saturday. Instead, Wake Forest's top gun got going in the last 20 minutes and the Demon Deacons pulled the upset.

On Jan. 13, with Duke ready to climb over the Tar Heels for No. 1, Childress hit a 3-point-er late to give the Demon Deacons a 69-68 victory. This time, Childress did the bulk of his damage from the free-throw line. He hit nine of 10 free throws in the last 3:20.

The Blue Devils attempted to stop Childress by assigning Grant Hill and Antonio Lang to guard him. That strategy paid off as Childress scored just six points in the first half. Duke couldn't stop Marc Blucas, and it helped keep the Demon Deacons close.

Blucas hit all five shots he tried in the first half for 16 points, but Hill offset that performance with 18 points before intermission.

Wake Forest (16-7, 6-4) switched defenses in the second half, going to a zone to stop Hill. It worked.

Eastern

Eastern righted the ship though, and grabbed an eight-point lead with 1:44 left. Louis Jordan scored on a baseline two-hand dunk and a bank shot in the lane and Troy Collier hit a three-pointer from the right corner.

The Panthers then missed four foul shots down the stretch, and Youngstown scored eight unanswered points. Penguin guard Hank Raber hit a three-pointer from the right corner to tie the score at 67-all with 19 ticks left.

After an Eastern timeout, the Panthers' attempt at working a set play was thwarted by the Penguin zone. But after getting the inbounds pass, Landrus improvised, driving the lane and drawing a foul with two seconds left.

"We had a play — a 'Box 3' — that we wanted to get to," Samuels said, "but they disrupted us by not letting us get it to our point guard. I think when Derrick got it he determined there wasn't enough time so he was just going to run the clock down and make something happen."

Andre Rodriguez led the Panthers with 17 points, and Jordan scored nine of his 12 points in the second half. Penguin guard Andre Smith led all scorers with 27 points.

Eastern had a relatively easy time with Austin Peay on Thursday night. After being down 10-8, the Panthers went on a 16-3 run with Curtis Leib scoring 10 straight Eastern points and the Panthers led 38-23 at the break.

Eastern's lead ballooned out to 23 at 56-33 midway through the second half.

The Governors began to chip away at the lead and eventually worked it down to 12 at 69-57 with 4:56 remaining.

Leib then hit two free throws and the Panthers finished the game on a 9-4 run to close out the game.

Leib led the Panthers with 16 points and five rebounds in 22 minutes.

"This is a great win," said Leib. "We needed this one. I thought the team came in and we took these guys seriously."

"Nobody was thinking this was a blow-off game. We came in to play and I thought for the most part, we played well tonight."

"It seemed like we were in command most of the game," said Samuels. "I think Austin Peay was a little flat-footed. They had a five-hour bus ride that was probably hard to deal with."

With a double-digit lead most of the game, Eastern found itself in an unfamiliar situation.

"It was like a new experience," said Rodriguez. "They got a little spurt there in the second half and I thought we withstood it pretty good."

The weekend victories left Eastern with an 11-9 overall record and in sole possession of fourth place in the Mid-Continent Conference with a 6-6 conference mark.

Team

• From Page 12

Eastern when the Panthers visit Cleveland's Goodman Arena at 6:30 tonight.

During the losing stretch, center Sam Mitchell and guard Craig Caldwell missed considerable playing time with injuries. Mitchell is the team's leading scorer at 16.4 points per game, and Caldwell has averaged 10.1 points as the team's point guard.

To make matters worse, sophomore forward Reggie Welch quit the team earlier this year but has since come back and has averaged 14.8 points off the bench for the Vikings.

"They're always a handful at Cleveland, and they've had some injuries to their two key players. But (Mitchell and Caldwell are) back and playing, as well as Welch, who has played for them in the last three games," said Panther coach Rick Samuels. "They're certainly recovering and playing better now."

The Panthers' demise in their first meeting with Cleveland State was a full-court press that pressured Eastern into 22 turnovers. Samuels said that he expects the press from the beginning and hopes his players will react to it.

"They had great success pressing us in the first game, so we have to be ready to handle that early," said Samuels. "Cleveland State's surely going to see if we can handle it and they're going to test us."

Transfer student making big splash

loves to fly, and it shows. Taff Nielsen, the men's swimmer's new sensation, can't help but smile when he speaks of breaking personal bests and talks of his goals for Eastern.

The 200 backstroke is what I'm focusing on for the Mideast Classic. I want to win that. I don't want to be cocky but... Nielsen said. Looking for a 1:55. That's really the event that I'm focusing on. I want to do good in all of the other events but I'm focusing on going as fast as I can in the 200."

Nielsen, a junior transfer student, is looking for the Panthers' all-time 200 backstroke time of 1:55.13 set by Tom Hussey back in 1981. Nielsen's best backstroke has been 1:58.00 in the past two weeks, but he is looking to peak at the Mideast Classic. Both Nielsen and his coach, Ray Padovan, think that 1:55 is an attainable goal for the meet that is Feb. 17 in Indianapolis.

Nielsen's main concern is the taper, a strategy used to help athletes peak at the end of the season, will have on him, since Nielsen's system is different than the one he's used to.

Nielsen comes from a high school, Park High School in Roselle, a community college, College of DuPage, that used a more abrupt taper as opposed to Padovan's more gradual style. "Ray uses a three-week taper where we only swim 7,000 yards a day. Back at College of DuPage and Lake Park, we did a two-week taper and we were doing 10,000 yards a day," Nielsen said. "Right now, I'm real tired. I'm worried about how the taper is going to effect us."

No muscle soreness has resulted so far and in last week's meet at Illinois-Chicago, Padovan said that Nielsen put together good swims and had his best meet of the year.

But Nielsen seemed to worry about the taper an awful lot, considering his relaxed style.

"My big thing before a meet is that I don't think about it. I'm really relaxed," Nielsen said. "The best way I've learned to go out in the backstroke is to take it out nice and relaxed because your body wants to go fast. It's taken me four years to learn how to swim the 200 backstroke and I finally got the hang of it, I think."

Nielsen's style of swimming the backstroke makes him the ideal distance swimmer. Instead of a quick "turnover," one revolution of the arm through the water, Nielsen has a long "stride" that makes it look as though he's taking his time, despite the fact that he's ahead of everyone.

"We were really hurting a lot last year, as far as numbers and talent. He came in and became our number one backstroke."

— Ray Padovan
Eastern swimming coach

"At our last meet at UIC, I got a lot of compliments on my turnover," Nielsen said. "When I swim backstroke, I get a real slow turnover. I think it's to my advantage because it seems like I've got more energy at the end of the race. I grab a lot of water when I swim."

Nielsen has grabbed a lot of attention as well.

Before Nielsen came to Eastern, he was recruited from every direction: Northern Illinois University, Southern Illinois University and Western Illinois University. Nielsen actually went to SIU first but had to sit out because "he didn't meet some qualifications to swim at Southern," according to Padovan.

"Last year, I felt like I didn't accomplish everything I wanted to. It was like when somebody takes something away from you when you're ready to get rid of it, it's like somebody dying," Nielsen said. "I wasn't even sure that I was going to come back. I decided I was going to because I didn't have any coaching at Southern whatsoever. So I basically swam on my own when I could. Over the summer I did a little training and then I got here. It took a good month or two to get back into shape."

And Nielsen has since become one of Eastern's most consistent swimmers this year, placing in the top two in just about every 200 backstroke he swims. He adds a bit of depth to the team, freeing up last year's best backstroke Brian Huey for other events, as well as swimming both the 100 and 200 backstrokes and the medley relay.

"We were really hurting a lot last year, as far as numbers and talent. He came in and became our number one backstroke," Padovan said. "Brian Huey was our number one. Brian doesn't feel slighted from it, but it allows me to do other things with Brian. So it's two-fold because he improves our backstroke and he frees up someone else on a different end."

best in the high jump in clearing 6 feet 4 inches, which earned third place. The height was just a 1/4 inch shy of the human record (6-11), which was set in 1987 by Hamman, who also set the current varsity mark of 7 feet.

Thompson now ranks fourth on Eastern's all-time list.

Nate Shaffer led the mile for the majority of the race, until he was kicked down the in the final quarter. He nevertheless finished fourth, in a personal-best time of 4:11.50, which ranks him 10th on Eastern's all-time list.

The Panthers' top performances came somewhat late in the nine-hour long meet.

"For a while, we only had one point," said Moore. "But all of a sudden points started coming in."

The top eight places in each event scored, but only three other Panthers managed such stature. Brent Rankin was sixth in the 800 at 1:56.52, Todd Benton tied for eighth in the pole vault at 14-4 and Neal Trentman tied for eighth in the high jump at 6-8 3/4. Finally the distance medley relay finished eighth at 10:29.91.

"We just didn't compete to our potential," Moore said. "Hopefully, we'll do better next week."

The Panthers will be traveling to Champaign Saturday to compete in a triangular at Illinois.

Eastern extends win streak to 3

Panthers top .500 mark with victories

The Eastern men's basketball team stretched its winning streak to three games over the weekend, defeating Austin Peay 78-61 in Lantz Gym Thursday night and knocking off conference foe Youngstown State 69-67 in Youngstown, Ohio, Saturday night.

In Saturday's game, Panther guard Derrick Landrus hit two free throws with two seconds left in regulation to snap a 67-67 tie and hand Eastern its third win in a row and avenge last month's home loss to Youngstown State.

The Panthers were up by as many as 11 points at 48-37 with 13:33 left when Youngstown threw on a 2-3 zone defense that disrupted the Eastern offense.

"We got good shots, the kind of shots we want to get in our zone offense, but they just didn't go down for us," Panther coach Rick Samuels said during a postgame radio show.

The Penguins then went on a 13-1 run, which ended on a Matt McMurray steal

How times have changed for the Vikings of Cleveland State.

On Jan. 10, the preseason Mid-Continent Conference favorite came into Lantz Gym and defeated the Panthers soundly, 71-56, and upped its conference record to 2-0.

Since then, the Vikings have lost seven of their last eight games, including an ugly 64-54 home loss to league doormat Western Illinois Jan. 29. That has left Cleveland State with a 7-13 overall record and a 4-8 conference mark.

Michigan teams rule CCC track meet

By BRIAN HARRIS
Staff writer

The men's track team traveled to Michigan University this weekend thinking it was to take part in the Central Collegiate Conference meet. However, upon their arrival, the Panthers found themselves in the midst of a would-be Michigan state championship.

Michigan schools dominated the competition at the CCC indoor championships, as they usually do. But they reigned supreme even more so this time, as four schools from the Great Lakes State finished in the top five.

Eastern Michigan scored a narrow victory over Michigan, 138 1/2 points to 137 1/2, which was decided in the final event Saturday, the mile relay. The Panthers placed seventh with 33 1/3 points.

Head coach Neil Moore said Eastern's performance was "disappointing" overall, citing injury and illness that kept the team from its true potential. But he also noted some outstanding individual performances as well.

Senior sprinter Obadiah Cooper and freshmen Kert McAfee and Thompson led the way for the Panthers, as all scored third place in their respective events.

Cooper ran 6.38 seconds for third place in the 55-meter dash and later placed sixth in the 200-meter dash with a 22.24 as well.

McAfee won his section of the 400-meter dash at 49.49, as was the case three weeks ago at the Illinois State Invitational, but two runners in the next section narrowly beat his time, leaving him third.

Lady Panthers drop 2 more

By RYAN GIUSTI
Sports editor

One statistic for the Eastern women's basketball team from Saturday's conference road matchup with Wisconsin-Milwaukee told the story.

The Lady Panthers had a first-half shooting percentage of 22 percent.

Plus, if you take out guard Nicky Polka's 4-for-6 shooting in the first 20 minutes, the rest of the Lady Panthers shot 4-for-31, or 13 percent.

The result of the cold shooting was a 23-point deficit at halftime and an 80-58 loss to the Panthers of Wisconsin-Milwaukee.

"We looked sluggish defensively, showed no intensity and rebounded poorly in the first half," Eastern coach John Klein said. "Tie that in with a bad shooting percentage, and you've got a real bad half."

John Klein

gave.

"We're the type of team that can't afford to get down by 20 points," Klein said.

Polka was one of a few bright spots in the game for Eastern. The junior from Greendale, Wis., scored a season-high 15 points, and added eight assists and four steals.

"Nicky is without a doubt a solid Division I

Schuette, Scheuer EIU scholar-athletes

Eastern golfer Jeff Schuette and swimmer Ronae Scheuer have been chosen as the university's male and female scholar-athletes of the year, respectively.

The two are now eligible for the Mid-Continent Conference's True Value/Scholar-Athlete of the Year awards, for which all Mid-Con schools nominate one male and one female athlete.

Schuette, a senior speech communication major, has compiled a 3.83 grade-point average and is an academic all-conference performer.

He is a member of both the Mortar Board and the dean's list.

Scheuer, a senior computer management major, has a 3.75 GPA and is also an academic all-conference performer.

She is a member of the National Honor Society, captain of the women's swim team and a member of the school record-setting 800-meter freestyle relay team.
